Lynda Klau, PhD

For over two decades, Dr. Lynda Klau has applied her holistic, integrative approach to mind, body and spirit as a licensed psychologist, coach and holistic business strategist. An educator, author, public speaker, and workshop leader, she has helped countless individuals free themselves from the psychological distress of depression, anxiety, self-judgment, relationship issues, and more.

She partners with both individuals and organizations to help them find their passion, manifest their power, and pursue their callings in the world. Her work is founded in the belief that the more our awareness deepens, the more we flourish.

An expert in the development of human possibility, Dr. Klau conducts workshops nationally and internationally and has appeared on radio and television. She is certified to facilitate the innovative methodologies of Speaking Circles© and Open Space, as well as teach Carl Stough's Breathing and Voice work, guided imagery, and various forms of meditation.

She has served on several professional boards, such as the International Association for Spirit at Work and the Burren Action Group, and currently serves as the V.P. of Mentorship for the SEC Rough Riders, a chapter of Toastmasters International.

She received her Ph.D. from The City University of New York. She has served as a tenured Assistant Professor at Ramapo College of New Jersey, and an Assistant Professor at Downstate Medical Center. Currently she is on the faculty of The Association for Spirituality and Psychotherapy.

Her unique integrative approach and broad spectrum of skills and cutting-edge tools for transformation form the foundation of her company, Life Unlimited: The Center for Human Possibility. Her practice is based in New York City, where she lives.
